The Condemned Sentinel.

A cold, stormy night in the month of March, 1707, Marshal Lefebvre, with twenty-seven thousand French troops, had invested Dantzic. The city was garrisoned with seventeen thousand Russian and Prussian soldiers, and these, together with twenty or thirty thousand well-armed citizens, presented nearly double the force which could be brought to the assault. So there was need of the utmost vigilance on the part of the sentinels, for a desperate sortie from the garrison, made unaware, might prove calamitous.

At midnight Jerome Dubois was placed upon one of the most important posts in the advance line of pickets, it being upon a narrow strip of land, raised above the marshy flat, called the peninsula of Nehrung. For more than an hour he paced his lonesome beat without hearing any thing more than the moaning of the wind and the driving of the rain. At length another sound broke upon his ear. He stopped and listened, and presently he called:

"Who's there?"

The only answer was a moaning sound.

He called again, and this time he heard something like the cry of a child and pretty soon an object came before him out from the darkness. With a quick, emphatic movement he brought his musket to the charge, and ordered the intruder to halt.

"Mercy!" cried the childish voice, "don't shoot me. I'm Natalie. Don't you know me?"

"Heavens!" cried Jerome, elevating his piece. "Is it you dear child?"

"Yes; and you are good Jerome. Oh, will you come and help mamma? Come, she is dying!"

It was certainly Natalie, a little girl, only eight years old, daughter of Lisette Villiant, a sergeant in Jerome's own regiment, and was with the army in the capacity of nurse.

"Why, how is this my little child?" said Jerome taking the little one by the arm.

"What is it about your mother!"

"Oh, good Jerome, you can hear her now. Hark!"

The sentinel bent his ear, but could hear only the wind and the rain.

"Mamma is in the dreadful mud," said the child, "and is dying. She is not far away. Oh, I can hear her crying."

By degrees Jerome gathered from Natalie that her father had taken her out with him in the morning, and that in the evening when the storm came on her mother came after her. The sergeant had offered to send a man back to the camp with his wife, but she preferred to return alone, feeling sure that she should meet with no trouble. The way, however, had become dark and uncertain, and she had lost the path, and wandered off the edge of the morass, where she had sunk into the soft mud.

"Oh, good Jerome," cried the little one, seizing the man's hand, "can't you hear her? She will die if you do not come and help her!"

At that moment the sentinel fancied he heard the wail of the unfortunate woman. What should he do? Lisette, the good, the beautiful, the tender-hearted Lisette, was in danger, and it was in his power to save her. It was not in his heart to withstand the pleadings of the child. He could go and return to his post without detection. At all events, he could not refuse the childish pleader.

"Give me your hand, Natalie. I'll go with you."

With a cry of joy the child sprang to the soldier's side; and when she had secured his hand she hurried him along toward the place where she had left her mother. It seemed a long distance to Jerome, and once he stopped as though he would turn back. He did not fear death, but he feared dishonor.

"Hark!" uttered the child.

The soldier listened, and plainly heard the voice of the suffering woman calling for help. He hesitated no longer, On he hastened through the storm, and found Lizette sunk to her arm pits in the soft morass. Fortunately a tuft of grass had been within her reach, by which she had kept her head above the fatal mud. It was no easy matter to extricate her from the miry pit, as the workman had to be very careful that he himself did not lose his footing. At length, however, she was drawn forth, and Jerome led her towards his post.

"Heavens!" gasped Jerome, trembling from head to foot.

"Who comes there?" repeated the voice.

Jerome heard the click of a musket-lock and knew that another sentinel had been stationed at the post he left. The relief had come while he was absent.

"Friends, with the countersign!" he answered to the new sentinel.

He was ordered to advance, and when he had given the countersign he found himself in the presence of the officer of the guard. In a few hurried words he told his story, and had the officer been alone, he might have allowed the matter to remain where it was; but there were others present, and when ordered to give up his musket, he obeyed with out a murmur, and silently accompanied the officer, where he was put in irons.

On the following morning Jerome Dubois was brought before a court-martial under charge of having deserted his post. He confessed that he was guilty, and then permission was granted him to tell his own story.

This he did in a few words, but they could do nothing but pass the sentence of death; but the members thereof all signed a petition praying that Jerome Dubois might be pardoned; and this petition was sent to the general of the brigade, and through him to the general of the division, by whom it was endorsed, and sent up to the marshal.

Lefebvre was kind and generous to his soldiers almost to a fault, but he could no overlook so grave an error as that which had been committed by Dubois. The orders given to the sentinel were very simple, and foremost of every necessity was the order forbidding him to leave his post until properly relieved. To a certain extent the safety of the whole army rested upon the shoulders of each individual sentinel, and especially upon those who at night were posted nearest the line of the enemy.

"I am sorry," said the gray-haired old warrior, as he folded up the petition and handed it back to the officer who had presented it. "I am sure that man meant no wrong, and yet a great wrong was done. He knew what he was doing—he ran the risk—he was detected—he has been tried and condemned—he must suffer."

They asked Lefebvre if he would see the condemned.

"No, no!" the Marshal cried quickly. "Should I see him and listen to one-half his story, I might pardon him; and that must not be done. Let him die, that thousands may be saved."

The time fixed for the execution of Dubois was the morning succeeding the day of his trial. The result of the interview with Marshal Lefebvre was made known to him, and he was not at all disappointed. He blamed no one and was sorry that he had not died upon the battlefield.

"I have tried to be a good soldier," he said to his captain. "I feel that I have done no crime that should leave a stain upon my name."

The captain took his hand and assured him that his name should be held in respect.

Toward evening Pierre Villant, with his wife and child, were admitted to see the prisoner. This was a visit which Jerome would gladly have dispensed with, as his feelings were already wrought up to a pitch that almost unmanned him, but he braced himself for the interview, and would have stood it like a hero, had not little Natalie, in the eagerness of her love and gratitude, thrown herself upon his bosom and offered to die in his stead. This tipped the brimming cup, and his tears flowed freely.

Pierre and Lizette knew not what to do. They wept and they prayed, and they would have willingly died for the noble fellow who had been thus condemned.

Later in the evening came a companion who, if he lived, would at some time return to Jerome's boyhood's home. First, the condemned thought of his widowed mother, and he sent her a message of love and devotion. Then he thought of a brother and sister. And finally he thought of one—a bright-eyed maid—whose vine-clad cot stood upon the banks of the Seine—one whom he had loved with a love such as only great hearts can feel.

"Oh, my dear friend," he cried, bowing his head upon his clasped hands, "you need not tell them a falsehood, but if the thing is possible, let them believe that I fell in battle."

His companion promised that he would do all he could, and if the truth could not be kept back, it should be so faithfully told that the name of Jerome Dubois should not bear disgrace in the minds of those who had loved him in other days.

Morning came, dull and gloomy, with driving sleet and snow, and at an early hour Jerome Dubois was led forth to meet his fate. The place of execution had been fixed upon a low, barren spot toward the sea; and thither his division was being marched to witness the fearful punishment. They had gained not more than half the distance when the sound of some strange commotion broke upon the wintry air, and very shortly an aid-de-camp came dashing to the side of the General of the Brigade with a cry:

"A sortie! A sortie! The enemy are out in force. Let this thing be stayed. The Marshal directs that you face about and advance upon the peninsula."

In an instant all was changed in that division and the Brigade-General, who had temporary command, thundered forth his orders for a countermarch. The gloom was dissipated, and with glad hearts the soldiers turned from the thoughts of the execution of a brave comrade to thoughts of meeting the enemy.

"What shall we do with the prisoner?" asked the sergeant who had charge of the guard.

"Lead him back to the camp," replied the captain.

The direction was very simple, but the execution thereof was not to be so easy, for hardly had the words escaped the captain's lips when a squadron of Prussion cavalry came dashing directly towards them. The division was quickly formed into four hollow squares while the guard that held charge of the prisoner found themselves obliged to flee.

"In heaven's name," cried Jerome, "cut my bonds and let me die like a soldier."

The sergeant quickly cut the cords that bound his elbows behind him, and then dashed towards the point where his own company was stationed. The rattle of musketry had commenced, and the Prussians were vainly endeavoring to break the squares of French troops. Jerome Dubois looked about him for some weapon with which to arm himself, and presently he saw a Prussian officer not far off reeling in his saddle as though he had been wounded. With a quick bound he reached the spot, and pulled the dying officer from his seat and leaped into the empty saddle.

Dubois was fully resolved to sell his life on that day—sell it in behalf of France—and sell it as dearly as possible. But he was not needed were he was. He knew that the Prussians could not break those hollow squares; so he rode away thinking to join the Frence cavalry, with whom he could rush into the deepest danger. Supposing that the heaviest fighting must be upon the Nehrung, he rode his horse in that direction, and when he reached it he found that he had not been mistaken. Upon a slight imminence, towards Hagelsburg, the enemy had planted a battery of heavy guns, supported by two regiments of infantry; and already with shot and shell immense damage had been done.

Marshal Lefebvre rode up shortly after the battery had opened, and very quickly made up his mind that it must be taken at all hazzards.

"Take that battery," he said to a colonel of cavalry, as he dashed past, "and the day is ours."

Dubois heard the order, and saw the necessity. Here was danger enough, surely; and determined to be the first at the fatal battery, he kept as near to the leader as he dared. Half the distance had been gained, when from the hill came a storm of iron that ploughed into the ranks of the French. The colonel fell, his body literally torn to pieces by a shell that exploded against his bosom.

The point upon the peninsula now reached by the head of the assaulting party was not more than a hundred yards wide; and it was literally a path of death, as the fire from the twelve heavy guns was turned upon it. The colonel had fallen, and very soon three officers went down, leaving the advance without a commissioned leader. The way was becoming blocked up with the dead men and dead horses, and the head of the column stopped and wavered. Marshall Lefebvre, from his elevated place, saw this, and his heart throbbed painfully. If that column were routed, and the Russian infantry charged over the peninsula, the result might be calamitous.

But—see! A man in the uniform of a French private, mounted upon a powerful horse, caparisoned in the trappings of a Prussian officer, with a bare head and a bright sabre swinging in his hand, rushes to the front and urges the column forward. His words are fierce and his look is dauntless.

"For France and for Lefebvre!" the strange horseman cries, waving the sword aloft, and pointing towards the battery.

"The Marshal will weep if we lose this day."

The brave troopers thus led by one who feared not to dash forward, where the shot fell thickest, gave an answering shout and passed on, caring little for the rain of death, so long as they had a lively leader to follow. Hoping that he might take the battery, and yet courting death, Jerome Dubois spurred on; finally the troops came upon the battery with irresistible force.

It was not in the power of the cannoneers to withstand the shock, and the Russian infantry that came to their support were swept away like chaff. The battery was quickly captured, and when the guns had been turned upon those who had shortly before been their masters, the fortune of the day was decided. The Russians and the Prussians—horse, foot, and dragoons—such as were not taken prisoners, made the best of their way into Dantzic, having lost much more than they had gained.

Jerome Dubois returned to his guard house, and gave himself up to the officer in charge. First a surgeon was called to dress several slight wounds, which he had received. Next his colonel was called to see what should be done with him. The colonel applied to the general of brigade, applied to the general of division, and the general of division applied to Marshal Lefebvre.

"What shall we do with Jerome Dubois, Marshal?"

"God bless him," cried the veteran general, who had heard the whole story, "I'll pardon him to-day, and to-morro I'll promote him."

And Jerome Dubois in time, went himself to see the loved ones in France, and when he went he wore the uniform of a captain.

WALL STREET MUSCLE.

"There are many muscular bulls and bears in the Stock Exchange," observed a prominent broker to a New York reporter, "and these fellows are as strong of limb as they are in voice. I know scores of bankers and brokers who are adopts in the 'manly art of self-defense.' Then there are robust wrestlers, strong oarsmen and long-distance pedestrians, who could, if so disposed, win applause in public performances. Not many months ago two well-known members of the Produce Exchange had an encounter, in which all the rules of the prize ring were rigidly adhered to.

"The fight took place on the floor of the Exchange, the circular brass railing in the middle of the room, known as the 'bull ring,' being used instead of the rope ring which is usually made use of on such occasions. It is a matter of history that this pugilistic struggle took place in the presence of about 200 members of the Exchange, and that when either of the contestants 'got in' a 'telling' blow upon the face or person of the other, the enthusiasm of the spectators was expressed by loud and prolonged cheering."

Five desperate rounds were fought, and when at the close one of the pugilists failed to come to time and was carried away in a most dilapidated condition, the victor was given such an ovation as would have gladdened the heart of Heenan, Sayers, Morrissey or Hyer in their palmiest days.

"There are at least fifty members of the Stock Exchange who are patrons of gymnasiums," observed the gentleman with whom the reporter was talking. "Some of these go to Turner Hall, in East Fourth street. The Turner Hall patrons include the well-known Wormser Brothers, bankers and broker, and members and clerks of various houses."

"Do the brokers take much stock in boating?"

"Oh, yes. Nearly all of the boat clubs have brokers among their members. Mr. Washington E. Connor, young Mr. Drexel, Mr. Oelrich, Mr. Oltman and the scions of the house of Seligman are oarsmen. It should be stated, however, that several of these gentlemen do not row in boats on the water?"

"That's a singular statement. How can a man be an oarsman if he keeps away from the water?"

"Easily enough. All he has to do is to use one of those rowing machines, the oars of which, instead of dipping into the water are attached to weights or springs. A man can be an oarsman in his own parlor if he likes, and not run the least risk of being drowned. But, of course, this kind of rowing is not of a very exciting nature, and I fear that it will never become popular with the college crews."

Anxious For Father.

'Mamma,' said a small boy, 'do you believe everything papa says?'

'Of course, my child,' replied the mother, with wifely pride.

'Everything, mamma?'

'Yes; dear, everything.'

'Well, I don't.'

'Hush, you wicked boy; you musn't talk so. What did your papa ever say that you couldn't believe?'

'You know that widow on the next square that always looks so sour at us boys?'

'You mean that pretty Mrs. Bonton?'

'She's the one. I heard papa tell her yesterday that she was the sweetest woman in town, and then he gave her a bunch of flowers, and it made me so ashamed to hear him tell her such a story that I ran away and wouldn't let him know I had caught him in it.

'That will do, my child,' said the mother, with a peculiar look in her gentle face; 'run out and play, and I will tell your father when he comes in that he must be particular not to destroy his son's confidence in his veracity!'

Quickened Consciences.

A correspondent of the Nashville American, repeats the following story, which was told him by a Georgian who witnessed the scene described:—

Georgia has a stringent pistol law. The penalty is forfeiture of the pistol and a fine of $50, and, at the discretion of the Court, imprisonment for thirty days. A short time after this law went into effect Judge Lester was holding court in one of the mountain counties of North Georgia, and right in the midst of the trial of a cause, he asked the attorneys to suspend a few moments, and told the Sheriff to lock the court house door and let no man pass out without permission from him. Then said the Judge, in his firm, decided way:—

"Gentlemen, I saw a pistol on a man in this room a few moments ago, and I cannot reconcile it to my sense of duty as a peace officer to let such a violation of the law pass unnoticed. It may be that it is my duty to go before the Grand Jury and indict him, but if that man will walk up to this stand and lay his pistol and a fine of $1 down here, I will let him off this time; otherwise I will go before the Grand Jury and testify against him."

The Judge paused, and an attorney, who was sitting down just before the stand, got up, slipped his hand into his hip pocket, drew out a neat ivory handled Smith & Wesson six-shooter and laid $1 before the Judge.

"This is all right," remarked the Judge, "but you are not the man that I saw with the pistol."

At this another attorney, sitting immediately in front of the Judge, got up and, drawing out a small Colt's revolver, laid it and a $1 bill upon the stand.

"This is right again," said the Judge, "but you are not the man I speak of."

Thereupon a large man just outside of the bar walked around, ran his arm into his bosom and, drawing out a huge old army pistol, laid it and $1 on the stand.

"I declare," exclaimed the Judge, "if this don't beat all; you have done right my friend, but you are not the man I saw with the pistol."

The process went on until nineteen pistols and $19 were lying on the Judge's stand. Then there was a pause, and it appeared as if the crowd were pretty well disarmed; at least, if there were any more pistols in the house their owners did not seem disposed to give them up.

"Gentlemen," resumed the Judge, "here are nineteen persons who have acted like men in this business, but the man that I saw with the pistol has not come up yet; and now," continued he, pulling out his watch and looking toward the far side of the Court House, "I will give him one minute to accept my proposition, and if he does not do it in that time I will point him out to the Sheriff and order him to take him into custody."

Immediately two men from the back part of the house began to move toward the Judge's stand. Once they stopped and looked at each other, and then, coming slowly forward, laid down their pistols and their dollars. As they turned to leave, the Judge said:—

"This man with the black whiskers is the one that I saw with the pistol."

Then Judge Lester gave a short lecture upon the cowardly, foolish and wicked habit of carrying concealed weapons, and assured his audience that in the future the law would be strictly enforced. The court proceeded with its regular business, and it is needless to add that in that country the habit of carrying pistols was broken up.

Conversational Proprieties.

The terms 'genteel people'—this, that, or the other is 'very genteel' are terms not to be used, or very seldom. Substitute for them such words as 'highly accomplished,' 'good taste,' 'gentlemanly,' &c. It is not well for a lady to say 'yes sir' and 'no sir' to a gentleman acquaintance, or frequently to introduce the word 'sir' at the end of her sentences, unless she desires to be exceedingly reserved towards the person with whom she is conversing. Such words as 'I guess,' 'I calculate,' and 'I reckon' are to be avoided as much as possible; and, when relating a conversation it is scarcely refined to use the expression 'says he' or 'says she' or 'you know.' Interrupting one who is speaking, even though it be an intimate friend, is graceless and unbecoming. Laughing at one's own story, is a short way of spoiling it—if it have any wit it will be appreciated. Speaking of any person who is at a distance within sight, it is a rude manner to point at him. Forgetting names, or mistaking one name for another, often indicates ill-mannered needlessness—thus, to say, Mr. What-d'-call-him, or, You-know-who, What's-her-name, or, How-dye-call-her. Another most offensive practice, is that of taking a person aside to whisper in a room where there is company. Looking one another in the face in conversation, is essential to secure life and interest. In speaking of ourselves and another person, whether he is absent or present, propriety requires us to mention ourselves last, in all cases and under all circumstances; thus we should say, 'he and I,' 'you and I.'

HUMOROUS.

A Fit of Absent-Mindedness.

'What cut do you prefer?' said the carver at a recent dinner given by Mr. Arthur.

'Cut?' repeated the President, absent-mindedly. 'Cut them skin tight, with medium swell buttons, two hip pockets and—'

'Sir!' interrupted the carver in amazement.

'Oh, I beg your pardon,' said his Excellency, recovering himself; 'a piece of the outside, please, with a little crisp fat.'

A Wifely Hint.

Mr. B.—'Here is something in this paper that you ought to know.'

Mrs. B.—'What is that?'

Mr. B.—'A receipt for getting rid of rats and mice. It says that wild mint scattered about the house will soon clean them out.'

Mrs. B.—'Mint? That is what you are so awfully fond of, isn't it?'

Mr. B.—'Well, yes, I rather like mint. But I wonder why it clears out rats and mice?'

Mrs. B.—'Probably when they smell the mint they conclude that the man of the house is a hard drinker, and that therefore the cupboard is empty.'

Mr. B. changed the subject.

Struggling Surgeon—'No, dear, I cannot go calling with you to-night.'

His wife—'But you promised that you would.'

'I know it, dear, but our finances are very low and I must not loose a chance get a fee.'

'But what chance will you loose? No patients have sent to you for a week.'

'I know it, dear, but I expect to be summoned for a very important surgical case, perhaps a broken leg, before the evening is over.'

'Where to?'

'Across the way. Mrs. Brown over there is house cleaning, and I just saw Mr. Brown going home with a step-ladder.'

'Mamma, what is that building?'

'A bank building, dearie.'

'Is that where papa keeps his money?'

'Yes, dearie.'

'Mr. Faro keeps it, don't he mamma?'

'Why, no, dearie! What a question!'

'Well, I heard papa say he'd left $1,000 at Faro's bank Saturday night, any way.'

'He did, did he.' (Aside) 'Well, that's one safe deposit he's made, anyway! I know now why he refused me a new dress, new gloves and hat yesterday. Oh, but I'll make him regret the day he was born!'

'What's the matter, mamma?'

'Nothing, dearie, only I'm going to say a few words to your papa concerning Mr. Faro's bank!'

P. GRAY MEEK, Chairman

THE newspaper opposition to Blaine becomes more portentous every day. The list of the Independent and Republicnn journals which are openly committed against him stands now: New York Times, New York Herald, Harper's Weekly, Puck, Evening Telegram,, Brooklyn Union, Rochester Post Express, Rochester Herald, Syracuse Herald, Flushing Times, Boston Advertiser, Boston Transcript, Boston Herald, Springfield Republican, Philadelphia Record, Philadelphia Times, Chicago News, Chicago Times, New Haven News, and the New York Evening Post. In addition to these the Chicago Inter-Ocean, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the Buffalo Express, the Buffalo Commercial Advertiser, the Philadelphia Telegraph, the Boston Journal, the Worcester Spy, and many other Republican party journals consent to support the ticket, but admit that they have small hope of seeing it elected. We do not believe any candidate of any party ever entered upon a Presidential canvass with such tremendous odds as these against him. In this city the Tribune is the only paper which supports Blaine squarely. The Commercial Advertiser has not defined its course clearly, but it evidently has no intention of advocating Blaine, for it says that his nomination was a "glorious victory" won by the "Star-route gang, the cow-boys, and the intriguing politicians." The Mail and Express is doubtful also, saying that "this may be a bad year for Republicans, unless entirely united and well guided."—New York Nation.

MATTHEW, Morgan & Sons, an old New York bank, have suspended.

CLEVELAND'S probable nomination at Chicago week after next, means the certain loss of New York for Blaine. How Blaine can be elected without the empire state is a perplexing question to the Republicans. While Massachusetts gives Blaine very little encouragement the South remains solid for the Democrats and after a close calculation of the electoral votes the outcome of the election for the Democrats may be guessed at in the following manner: Southern states, 153, New York, 37 Indiana, 15, New Jersey, 9, Connecticuit, 6, Wisconsin, 11, Massachusetts, 14, Ohio 23. Necessary for the election of a president, 201.

SOLID ADVICE was given to Democratic voters by our esteemed contemporary, the Bellefonte Watchman, some weeks ago, saying that they shall not depend too much on the apparent advantages which the Republican discontent may give us in the coming election, but to put forth the best of their own efforts to win the battle. We earnestly urge our democratic readers to heed this advice.

GENERAL DAVIS lays down a platform in his letter of acceptance of the Democratic candidacy for Congressman-at-Large that recalls the honest statesmanship of the best days of Democracy; and what the gallant old Democratic soldier of two wars says, he means in both letter and spirit. —Phila. Times.

THE committee appointed for that purpose by the republican national convention officially notified Hon. James G. Blaine of his nomination on Saturday, June 21st, at his home in Augusta, Me The ceremonies were performed very quietly and little enthusiasm was displayed.

THE democratic state conventions held in New York, Michigan, Georgia, Colorado, last week, all expressed their preferences for Grover Cleveland, the Reform Governor of New York, as the candidate for President, who is to lead on the Democratic columns to victory in November.

BLAINE republican papers pronounce the independent movement in Massachusetts and New York an unimportant affair. Well, if it is so unimportant, why refer to it at all? Newspapers do not generally make special mention of unimportant matters.

IN this campaign the democratic papers are partly relieved of the trouble of showing the bad sideof the republican candidate for President. The anti-Blaine republican press does that work admirably well.

AFTER a protracted illness, William Alexander Charles Henry Fredrick, Prince of Orange and heir to the throne of the Netherlands, died on Saturday, June 21st, in his thirty-fourth year.

SIMILAR to Henry Clay, Blaine received the nomination after several unsuccessful attempts and at a time, when a republican victory is a very uncertain thing.

KARL SCHURZ'S German republican organ, the Western Post, says, Blaine's nomination is a national misfortune.

THERE IS THAT about the Cleveland boom which indicates that it has come to stay.—Phila. Times.

BY all appearances it will be—Cleveland and McDonald.

The Independents at Work.

NEW YORK, June 20.—The independent republican organization committee appointed by George Wm. Curtis met to-day and chose Mr. Curtis chairman. It was decided to name the committee, "The independent republican committee."

The following document was approved and will be circulated throughout the country for signatures:

"The undersigned, protesting against the nomination of Blaine and Logan, propose to join their fellow republicans and independent voters in sending representatives to a general conference to be held immediately after the democratic national convention, which conference shall consider, in case the democratic nominations do not justify the support of the protesting republicans, what further action may be necessary to secure candidates who will appeal to the interests of clean and honest politics and the sober, honest sense of the American people."

A Tribute to the Democratic Party.

From the Springfield Republican.

The Democrats to-day are intrusted with the administration of three-fifths of the whole number of States. For the second time since the war they are in a majority of the national House of Representatives. The Democratic policy upon both occasions when they have been in power in the House has been one of conservatism and economy. During the period of financial issues the Democratic party suffered to a greater extent than the Republican from the Western craze for repudiation and inflation, but upon nearly all the great financial measures the best men of both parties were compelled to unite to save them. Since these issues were measurably settled by the resumption of specie payments the Democratic party has laid itself open to criticism more by its timidity and converyatism than by the exhibition of any other quality. In the greatest test of patriotism to which the Democratic party has been subjected since the war—that of a peacable submission to the injustice of the electorial count of 1877—the conduct of the party leaders will receive and deserve the highest praise of history.

Preparations for the Democratic Convention.

The Chicago Local Committee of Arrangements which is to prepare for the National Democratic Convention, has directed an architect to make plans for the rearrangement of Convention Hall so that the seating capacity will be enlarged to admit 20,000 persons. The accommodations for the press will also be enlarged. The local managers confidentially expect a larger outside attendance than was the case with the Republican Convention. Democratic political clubs from all parts of the country have announced their intention to be present.

Cleveland's Strength in Missouri.

SEDALIA, Mo., June 22.—The Democrat of this city publishes a letter from seventy-five leading democratic editors of Missouri called forth by request for their preference for the presidency. Opinions thus expressed probably represent the sentiments of the democrats of this state better than anything yet published. Nearly three-fourths of the writers favor the nomination of Cleveland, ten want Bayard, while the others are scattering in their choice. All but two or three believe that Tilden's letter is a positive declination and that he is out of the race. One editor, however, declared himself for Tilden forever, dead or alive. For vice president one-half favor McDonald, while Hoadly, Palmer, Cleveland, Morrison, Slocum, Butler and Rosecrans are all mentioned favorably.

The Republican Revolt.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The following committee has been appointed in accordance with the resolutions adopted at the conference of independents and republicans last night to make arrangements for the organization of an independent party: Geo. W. Curtis, Carl Schurz, Stephen P. Nash, Francis C. Barlow, Joseph W. Harper, jr., Henry A. Oakley, Jackson S. Schultz, C. T. Christtenson, Edward Soloman, Ethen Allen Doty, George Hayen Putman, Charles Scribner, George Walton Green, F. W. Whiteridge, Horace E. Deming, R. R. Bowker, W. A. White, Geo. Hill, S. W. Grierson, Herman Dowd, Felix Kauffman, Thos. C. Sloan, Chas. MacVeagh, Percival Knauth, W. C. Sawyer, Arthur M. Sherwood, H. Van Amringe, James Stokes, Fredrick Cromwell, S. S. Burnham, E. S. Waterman and C. Stewart Davison.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24th, 1884.

I begin to think that it will make but very little difference who the Democratic nominee at Chicago will be, or where he comes from, for he is going to be elected anyway. The revolt against Blaine and Logan has already (in two weeks after the nominations) penetrated every portion of the country, and evoked from the decent portion of the grand old party an universal cry for a charge. There was not among the baker's dozen of Republican candidates before the Chicago convention, any one man so positively bad as Blaine, yet there would have been open and bold rebellion against the selection of the best of them, because of the old feud which has finally effected a hopeless disruption of the party. Granting that New York cannot agree upon the presentation of a candidate, there seems to be sentiment enough outside of the Empire State to make a selection for her, and the choice cannot but fall upon Governor Cleveland, who, next to Tilden, stands for all that is to be sought in the way of a reformation of our political methods.

I suppose that John Logan's military record is not to be questioned, and I don't know that anybody desires to question it, but in these piping times of peace we naturally inquire something about the record of men who arrogate to themselves a claim to leadership in civil affairs. Logan had no sooner entered into public life than he began to precipitate his family and friends upon the public exchequer, and his family was the largest that has been known since the days of Maccabeus. He has quartered upon the military and civil list a horde of political cormorants larger than a Senator or Representative was ever responsible for before, and his adroity cultivated the friendship of each succeeding administration to the extent of retaining the patronage not only of his own State but of the whole Northwest, wherein he has made places for that never-to-be-satiated host of place-seekers nestled in the ranks of the G. A. R. It is with the most unsavory record that Logan now goes before the people of this great country asking to be given the second highest position in the Government in which the oportunities of an increased patronage are the sole inducements for his ready acceptance of the nomination.

The Senate has had a genuine sensation this week—the first, and probably the last of the session. It was an emeute between the massive Ingalls, of Kansas, and Father Brown, of Georgia, in which it is generally conceded that the conceited Ingalls came off second best. The interpolation of the Record that Ingall charged upon Brown, amounted to nothing, even if true, and it only shows that Ingalls was attempting to gain a little cheap notoriety as a Senatorial blackguard, in selecting for his victim one whose age at least should have shielded him from a public insult of this character.

It is possible, though not at all probable, that Congress will adjourn in the early part of July. Should the House at once take up the business that the Senate has prepared for it, and which has been on the Speaker's table for six weeks, it can rush it through and adjourn by that time. But there seems to be a disposition on the part of both Senators and Representatives to await the action of the coming Democratic Convention, in order to inject a few hundred campaign speeches into the Record and have them printed and circulated at Government expense.

PHONO.

Miscellaneous.

Train Wreckers' Bad Work.

A Train Precipitated into the River by the sinikng down of a Bridge.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 18.—The Times Atchison, Kansas, dispatch says: As the eastbound passenger train on the Burlington and Missouri river road approached, Hubbel a spread of the rails about 60 feet from the approach to the bridge occured, 150 feet long. The engine left the track, but crossed the bridge on the ties, jolting the bridge and causing it to fall, carrying down the entire train. The engine, smoking car, day coach and sleeper are all a complete wreck. There were about thirty persons injured.

An examination indicates that wreckers drew out the spikes, removed the fish plates, fastened barbed wire in the holes and pulled the rails apart when the train approached.

Destructive Conflagration at Shenandoah.

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.—A dispatch to the Times giving the particulars of the fire at Shenandoah to-day says: "The wooden structures burnt like tinder, but the flames were finally confined to a space of 200 square feet. Seventeen tenement houses, occupied by at least 200 Hungarians and four other families, were destroyed. The greatest excitement prevailed. The alarming prevalence of the fires during a part of the few months following the great conflagration of November last having kept business interests in a state of continual fear. Houses valued at $150,000 were destroyed. The personal effects of the tenants for the most part were destroyed. Their loss will reach probably six or seven thousand dollars. The fire is supposed to have been caused by sparks from a passing engine on the Lehigh Valley railroad. A Polish woman, name unknown, was seriously burned in attempting to remove some goods from her blazing house. The occupants were of the lowest class of Hungarians and the fire made rapid progress through their rooms. The stench in their quarters almost overcame the firemen. The fire department is poorly equipped and the water supply is poor.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

A. CROWNOVER, Saulsbury, Pa., writes:

"J. A. McDonald,

Dear Sir:—Your Liver Pills are giving good satisfaction here, and there is quite a demand springing up for them.

Please send me three dozen boxes at once, as I am out and some of my customers won't have any other."

Comment needless. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

—Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., still makes a business of doing special jobs at carpentry. John is really an expert at the business and has large experince, both in making out plans, specifications and drawings, as well as a practical workman. People who entrust their work into his hands can safely rely on having it done in best style at the lowest prices. tf —DRUGGISTS as a rule are extremely jealous and careful of the honor of their profession, and are loth to praise a medicine which they do not from personal knowledge know to be a meritorious article. They all agree however, that for smallness of dose, easiness to take, and effectiveness as a worm destroyer, McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders are the best and most desireable vermifuge in their stock, and do not hesitate to recommend them. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic an Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent. profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents, and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every housewoner, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $500 a month clear, and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or General Agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days, and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more that double the amount we guaranteed, and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to every one out of employment who will send us three one-cent stamps for postage Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer, to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will loose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

—Rumor says that some of our western emigrants who left here about three months ago are anxious to come back to Millheim.

—The bill providing that newspapers weighing less than four ounces shall go through the mails for one cent has been signed by the president.

—It is said that the Grangers in this state are engaging farm hands at $1.25 per day during hay making and $1.50 during harvest with board.

—Mr. G. W. Harter, received a slight sunstroke last Friday, while attending the funeral of his nephew. He is doing right well again.

—Miss Flora Kurzenknabe, of Harrisburg, who had been the guest of Mrs. Jonathan Harter the last few weeks, returned to her home yesterday.

—When pieces of wood while splitting it hit you around the eyes, things look a little blue afterward. At least that is the experience of a certain lady in town.

—'Sheriff M. and Const. H. pitched a match game of quoit the other evening, in which the Sheriff came out second-best, and they went for—a walk up town.

—Henry Miller departed on Monday morning for Royer's Ford, Montgomery county, Pa., where he received a good job as moulder in a large stove manufactory.

—Turbert Kreamer, who had been working at a lumber job at Williamsport, expects to return home to see his parents and will work a few weeks in haying and harvest.

—We are informed that Millheim is to have a Sewing Machine store before long, under the management of Mr. F. Hosterman, former salesman in Fiedler & Runkle's store.

—Mr. Geo. P. Ruhl, of Swengle, is in town on a visit to his daughter, Mrs. A. J. Harter. He is in possession of a patent hay fork, which he gave a trial yesterday on Jacob Gephart's farm.

—Our next issue will contain the portraits of the democratic presidential candidates as well as a full account of the proceedings of the Democratic National Convention at Chicago, July 8th.

—Mr. Wm. Kerstetter has the masons at work on the cellar wall of his new house, south of town. When his home is finished and everything cleaned up around it, it will be a fine property and no doubt his family will be glad to move in soon.

—Hot? You're right.

—Jonathan Harter and Daniel Gentzel are off on a trip to the Western counties of this state, buying up horses some of which they expect to sell on their return home.

—A new stock of fine and every-day-shoes just received at D. S. Kauffman & Co's great Bargain Store. Finest goods, best quality, sold at the very lowest figures. Come and see them.

—Mr. Al. Deininger, of New Berlin is visiting in town. He expects to be at Millheim the greater part of the summer and intends to canvass as agent for Hubbard & Bros. a well-known publishing firm of Philadelphia.

—A party of three, Squire Reed and Snyder of Mt. Carmel, and Mr. C. John of Shamokin, passed through Sunbury on Monday on their way to Millheim on a trout fishing excursion.--Northumberland County Democrat June 20.

—Rev. G. W. Gerhart, of Lock Haven, exchanged pulpits with Rev. N. J. Miller, pastor of the Rebersburg Reformed charge, last Sunday. Rev. Gerhart is a fluent and earnest speaker. His sermons are mentioned in terms of praise.

—OH! OH! This howling, jumping raging toothache! I would give anything for relief. Well; it won't cost you much. 15 cents will get you a bottle of the Great Zingari Toothache Drops, Guaranteed. For toothache and neuralgia the Great Zingari have no, equal. Keep them in the house, they may save you hours of agony. Sold by Jacob Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—The 25th session of six weeks will begin in the Musical College, at Freeburg, Pa., on Tuesday morning, July 29th. A grand opportunity for the training of young ladies. For information and circulars, address,

F. C. MOYER,
Musical Director.

—Miss Rebecca Grenoble, of Gregg township, departed this life on last Monday morning, having reached the age of forty-two years and one month. She was afflicted with dropsy and had been sick for about a year and a half. She was confined to the house ever since last fall until death relieved her from her earthly sufferings.

—One of our town cows got fast with her head between the spokes of a spring-wagon wheel. In trying to extricate herself she hauled the wagon up and down the alley several times, but did not succeed in freeing her head until some one came and sawed some of the spokes off. Town cows are always in some kind of mischief.

—Rev. John Tomlinson is absent this week attending a meeting of the Seminary Board at Gettysburg. He wishes to inform the members of this congregation that in consequence of his trip he will be unable to fill his appointment in the St. John's Luth. church in this place next Sunday. His next preaching here will be on the first Sabbath in July in the afternoon at 2½ o'clock.

—The following for the consideration of persons indulging in profanity:

"If any person shall willfully, premeditatedly and despitefully blaspheme or speak loosely and profanely of Almighty God, Christ Jesus, the Holy Spirit or the Scriptures of truth, such persons, on conviction thereof, shall be sentenced to pay a fine not exceeding $100, and undergo an imprisonment not exceeding three months, or either, at the discretion of the court. Act of March 31, 1880."

FESTIVAL ON THE FOURTH.—The ladies of the "All Workers' Society" of the U. B. Church of Millheim will hold a festival in the town hall on the afternoon and evening of the Fourth of July.

Refreshments of all kinds such as ICE CREAM, CAKES and LEMONADE will be served.

The proceeds of this festival will be applied to the repairing and painting of their Church building on Main street.

The public is respectfully invited to attend this occasion and is requested to contribute to the good work by a liberal patronage of the refreshment stands.

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION AT REBERSBURG.—The citizens of Rebersburg and vicinity, under the auspices of Post 298, G. A. R., will have a grand celebration of the Fourth in that town. Presentation of a flag to Post 298, Ice Cream Festival at the G. A. R. hall, and a Baloon Ascension and magnificent display of Fire Works in the evening will be some of the main features of the programme. Prominent speakers have been procured for the occasion.

All are invited to come and have a pleasant time.

—The following proclamation, issued by our chief burgess has been posted up at all conspicuous places in town:

NOTICE FOR THE FOURTH OF JULY, 1884:—Whereas miniature balloon ascensions with fire, and the shooting of glass balls with shot within or upon the streets within the built-up portions of the borough of Millheim are considered highly dangerous to life and propty, therefore, the undersigned, by virtue of his office and the existing statutes of the state, strictly prohibits any of the aforesaid performances within prescribed limits and demands the arrest of all or any of the violators of the above laws.

R. B. HARTMAN,
Chief Burgess.

Millheim, June 19th, 1884.

—Help the ladies of the U. B. church on the Fourth by liberally patronizing their festival.

—Mr. Brooks, the gentlemanly collector and solicitor of the Bellefonte Republican gave us a short call yesterday.

—Katie Bartholomew, of Philadelphia, will spend the Fourth at Millheim with her parents. She is expected to arrive to-morrow.

—Do not fail to call around at the town hall on the fourth. The ladies of the U. B. church will serve you with first-class ice cream, &c.

—Mr. J. L. Kreamer, of Woodward, administrator of the estate of J. H. Musser, late of Haines township, dec'd, advertises the real estate of the decedent at Orphans' Court sale, in another column.

—Mr. A. J. Griest, of Unionville, announces for County commisioner in this week's JOURNAL. Messrs. Griest, Wolf & Campbell, having done their duties very creditably during their term of office as commissioners, should be re-elected. The tax-payers of the county are under obligations to them for the reduction of the heavy county debt and another three years of their work would certainly be beneficial to the financial affairs of old Centre.

—A BOTTLE of Curtis' Carmelite Cordial should occupy the handy corner of every traveller's satchel. No prudent person will think of undertaking a journey involving changes of climate diet and water, without first procuring a bottle. It never fails! It never disappoints! Money refunded in every case when a single bottle, as directed, fails to cure any case of cholera, dysentery, cholera morbus, diarrhœa, cramps, pains in the bowels, or any intestinal irritation.

—As customary the JOURNAL will take a week's vacation over the Fourth of July. Our typos are anxious for a little rest from their continuous and confining labors and next week is their time to take it. After that they will feel like "coming up to the rack" again and the JOURNAL will come to its readers as newsy as ever, greeting them with the names and portraits of the Democratic nominees for President and Vice President.

In the meantime we shall be pleased to have our patrons call at the office, where we will gladly receive orders for advertising or job work, names of new subscribers and last but not least moneys on outstanding accounts.

—The ice cream party which came off at Wm. P. Catherman's residence on North street, last Friday, proved a very pleasant occasion to all who were present. Three different flavors were used in the elegant ice cream and some of the finest and richest cakes adorned the large table and were hugely enjoyed by everybody. About thirty persons were in attendance and did full justice to the delicacies being dished up through the evening, departing for their homes at a late hour, feeling satisfied that they had spent a delightful evening.

—CAMPMEETING.—The campmeeting for Centre charge will be held in Mr. Jacob Gephart's Grove, north of Millheim, commencing about the middle of August and will continue about one week. To this religous and social feast we would most cordially invite all christians of whatever denomination to erect their tent and spend a week with us in the service of our comon Master. For information apply to the undersigned committee.

—The four greatest and most desirable properties of a successful medicine, are perfectly combined in McDonald's Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Alterative. In malassimilation of food and dyspepsia its effects are speedy and happy. For disfiguring humors of scrofula and letter, the loathsome sores of venereal diseases, the burning tortures of erysipelas, no other medicine can possibly equal it. As a spring medicine, perfect blood purifier, efficient and safe diuretic and aperient, it meets with gratifying favor from the medical profession and the people. —On Wednesday of last week Mr. John B. Harter, a son of Mr. Daniel Harter, residing near Rebersburg, was called to his eternal home by the merciless reaper death. Deceased sustained severe injuries in falling from a fruit tree several years ago. Under the skill of physicians he for a while improved in mind and body; but afterward, his condition growing worse, he was moved to the asylum at Danville. A few months ago he returned to his home in a fair way of entire recovery. But the sudden change of temperature in the weather brought on a relapse which eventuated in his death. Mr. Ohl, a skillful attendant from the institution at Danville, had charge of the patient after his return to Brushvalley. The future of John Harter was very promising before the accident occurred, which ended in his early death. The subject of this article attained the age of eighteen years and some months.

J. J. Gramley for County Treasurer.

Walker Township, June 19th, 1884.

DEAR EDITOR:—As the time of making a choice to fill various county offices of noble old Centre county is drawing nigh, we deem it but just and proper to push forward the very best material, and we have that in Walker township, in the person of J. J. Gramley, who is a farmer by occupation, a hard-working man and in the ranks of Democracy. We know him to be well qualified to fill the office of Treasurer, from the fact, that he has filled nearly all our township offices to the satisfaction of his constituents, by an honest and square performance of duty. We hope that all fair means may be employed in convention to make him the nominee for treasurer.

J. C. Motz is nursing a sore finger.

"Warren," how is it about that fishing party?

The corn at this end of the valley looks well.

"Mukle" has struck a vein of what is supposed to be soft coal, on the old Haines farm.

Our singing school has closed until after harvest.

J. Willis Musser has started a menagerie. He has a tame crow—that is, he is trying to tame it.

William Geistwite has built a new barn. Boss carpenter Geo. Stover and his crew did the work.

Gregg Kenney gives free lectures every Saturday evening.

Al. Deininger, from New Berlin, is sporting around our town.

Miss Laura Ettlinger, who has been staying at Poduka, Ky., for the last three years is home visiting her parents and friends.

Emanuel Ungard's house is ready for occupation.

Aaronsburg boys are frequent visitors of our little village.

Twenty six persons assembled at Mr. Sol. Ettlinger's residence at this place last Friday night and gave a pleasant surprise party to the host and his family. Every participant in the party was provided with splendid cakes and innumerable delicacies, and when the tables were spread and arranged it presented a sight that made the heart of the hungry laugh. The writer is only sorry he couldn't raise the snitz, or there would have been some pies there for Sol. Will do better the next time. A splendid evening was spent, Mr. Ettlinger, the jolly host never being at a loss to pleasantly entertain a company of friends. FRITZY.

Madisonburg Scraps.

Andrew Ocker has the carpenters at work building a piece to his barn.

Geo. Reber swapped a horse on a phaeton the other day.

Alice Wise returned home from Lock Haven.

Mrs. Chesty Smull is suffering from a severe attack of billious fever.

Candidates are very plenty annd very pleasant, repeating the old campaign story—"My neighbors and friends wanted me to come out for the office, &c."

J. L. Roush returned from Lancaster last Friday, where he had been attending school. J. L. expects to go to Clearfield to canvass books.

Geo. Limbert and Wm. Bierly also came home on Friday and intend to spend their vacation in the harvest field.

Lewis Wolf has taken two pleasure trips since his school closed. One to Millheim to enjoy the show and another to Lock Haven.

Oscar Gramley, of near Rebersburg, lost a valuable horse the other day, this being the second one for this spring.

Dr. Lee received a swollen eye by coming in too close contact with a bee. *

The Great Desert.

A traveller who has journeyed across the great Sahara desert in Africa, thus describes in the New Orleans Times the terrible scenes that he witnessed: Riding five hundred metres in advance of our little troop, the horseman who acts as guide directs our way over the dead level of the dismal solitude. For the last ten minutes he kept his horse at a walk, sitting motionless in his saddle, and singing in his own tongue a melancholy, long-drawn chant; with singularities of Oriental rhyme. We imitate his pace. Then all of a sudden he starts off at a trot, standing in his stirrups erect, with his great burnour floating behind him. And we all trot after him, until he draws rein again to re-commence a gentle pace.

I ask my comrade:

"How can he guide us through these naked wastes without a single mark to show the way?"

But he answered:

"There are only the bones of camels."

And in fact, every quarter of an hour, we came across some enormous bone gnawed by beasts, cooked by the sun—all white, in strong relief against the sand. Sometimes it was part of a leg, sometimes part of a jaw, sometimes a part of the vertebral column. The caravans leave behind them every animal they cannot keep up; and the jackale do not carry all the remains away.

And for several days we continued this monotonous voyage, always in the saddle, always behind the same Arab, almost without speaking.

Now, one afternoon, as we were approaching Bou-Saada, I saw, far off, before us, a great dark mass, made larger by the mirage,—the form of which astonished me. At our approach two vultures flew away. It was a carcass, still slimp in spite of the heat,—glossy as though varnished, with putrid blood. The chest alone remained; the limbs had doubtless been torn off and carried away by the voracious devourers of the dead.

"Ah! There are travellers ahead of us!" said the lieutenant.

Some hours later we entered a ravine, a sort of a defile, a frightful furnace, bordered by huge rocks toothed like a saw—sharp, pointed, ragged, rabid, in revolt, as it were against the implacably ferocious sky. Another corpse was lying there. And a jackal that had been devouring it flew away.

Then, as we passed out of the ravine, a gray heap of something before us moved; and slowly, at the end of a disproportionately long neck, I saw he head of an agonizing camel rise up. He was lying there—and had been lying for three or four days, perhaps—on his side, dying of fatigue and thirst. His long members, that seemed inert, broken, all mixed up together, were stretched upon the fiery soil. And, hearing us coming, he had lifted up his head, like a light-house His forehead, already gnawed by the sun, was but one wound—one running sore; and his resigned gaze followed us. He did not utter a moan, did not make the least effort to rise. One would have thought, that he had seen so many of his brothers die in their long voyages through desolation he knew to well the merciless of man. Now it was his turn—that was all! And we passed on.

But when I looked back a long, long time afterward, I saw still rising up from the sand the lofty neck of the abandoned beast, watching to the end the last living creatures he could ever behold, passing beyond the horizon.

An hour later it was a dog, crouching close to a rock, with jaws wide open and fangs glittering, incapable of moving a paw, with eyes fixed upon two vultures who sat not far off, plumming themselves while waiting for his death. He was so possessed with terror of those terribly patient birds, waiting for his flesh, that he never turned his head, and did not even feel the stones that a saphi flung at him.

And, suddenly at the outlet of another defile, I saw the oasis before me.

It was an apparition never to be forgotten. One has traversed endless plains, climbed mountains all craggy, bald, calcined, without ever seeing a tree, a plant; a single green leat, and lo!—right before you, at your very feet, is an opaque mass of sombre verdure—as it were, a lake of foliage extending upon the sand. Then, further on, the desert recommences, lengthening infinitely to the indefinable horizon where it mixes with the sky.

Says the Scientific American: "In consequence of the increasing number of grave-yard desecrations, the genius of the inventor has been incited to devise means for their defeat. Among the most recent patterns is one for the coffin torpedo, which consists of a canister containing powder, balls and a firing trigger so arranged that on placing the torpedo within the coffin, and finally closing the lid, should any attempt be made to open the coffin the torpedo will be instantly exploded, a noise like thunder ensue, and deadly balls will fly in all directions.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.
N. H. DOWNS'
Vegetable Balsamic
ELIXIR
For the cure of
Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.
CONSUMPTION
It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.
Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.
SOLD EVERYWHERE.

DR. JOHN BULL'S
Smith's Tonic Syrup
FEVER and AGUE
Or CHILLS and FEVER,
AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.
